

Personalised learning and development - In-company solutions

Do you want to support your people with their personal development?

Our Personal Development solutions provide a combination of coaching and access to tools and resources, including the LearningPlanet library of short microlearning videos covering essential interpersonal and leadership skills.

We can support your people to achieve their work-place goals whilst building longer term self-development practices that will sustain careers going forward.

How is it different to regular coaching or mentoring?

We draw on our many years' experience of helping groups and individuals to learn and develop in the workplace. We share tools and techniques around modern learning methods and build these into the sessions, not just solving the immediate challenges but providing a toolkit for future personal and career development challenges.

Benefits for your organisation:

- Allows you to support your people with their personal development and career goals
- Helps to create a learning culture
- Will help develop your people faster and more effectively
- The skills needed to learn effectively mirror the skills needed to succeed in modern working environments - for example developing creativity & curiosity, collaboration and networking
- Investing in coaching for employees can help with wellbeing and motivation as well as supporting with the complexities and challenges of modern working life.

*Our Personal Development solutions can be adapted to the needs of your organisation.
Talk to us if you're interested in a custom solution - enquiries@talentstorm.co.uk*